

The European Branch of the American Counseling Association (EB-ACA) is very proud to announce the following Learning Institute (LI):

Survival Games Personalities Play

Eve Delunas
Ph.D., LMFT

28-29
JAN
2012

Learning Center
Landstuhl

Perhaps you are familiar with the Myers-Briggs Types, the Keirsey Temperament Model, or the True Colors Personality Types. The Survival Games Model provides the link between these personality patterns and dysfunctional behavior. Learn what triggers each of four personalities to engage in symptomatic behavior and which survival-game-tactics, or negative coping strategies, each is most likely to employ. Discover which intervention strategies are most effective in stopping the games of Blackmail, Complain, Robot and Masquerade.

Eve Delunas has been using the Survival Games Model for 30 years in her work as a psychotherapist/educator, and organizational trainer. Her book Survival Games Personalities Play describes her unique application of the temperament model in understanding and treating dysfunctional behavior. Eve worked with Dr. David Keirsey (Author of Please Understand me) for over 10 years. She is currently professor in the UMUC graduate counseling program in Europe.
